My Favorite Book

Age twelve is a period that our mind and imagination begin to expand. Around this age, I started to feel curious about whether there is something else that exists outside the world we live in that we don't know about it. I always wonder if there is something magical in this world. Therefore, I love reading fantasy books. My favorite book under age twelve is the Harry Potter series. Harry Potter is a book where the author creates a magical world where the power of good is in the war against the evil force. This is an adventure story with deep messages and lessons behind it.

When I started reading the book, it immediately caught my attention. The story has a number of interesting twists and every chapter is exciting. You will never get bored with it and want to read it over and over again. I love how the author created a truly magical world in this book. For example, there are many extraordinary things such as the flying broomstick and the sorting hat. One of the things which excite me is how they use spells and wands to control people and objects about them. For example, "Alohomora" is used to unlock doors. I remember when I was a kid I always tried to imitate them, hoping to be like them.

I also love how the series taught readers a lot of life lessons that we can apply to our life. This series taught me about friendship, love, family, and bravery. The characters in the book are full of courage and always ready to face difficulties in their journey. They support each other in trouble. They are the model for us to follow. What I learn from it is that we should not escape from difficulties and always support each other when we encounter problems. Friendship can get you through anything.
