

Reflection

From this assignment, I realized how important books are in childhood development. By analysing children's books, we know how books impact on children during their stage of development. Books provide children knowledge, life lessons, useful advice, and encourage us. It also helps children to know language, words, and develop literacy skills. Children literature also helps children to develop in many areas such as emotional, behavioral, and social. For example, "The Grouchy Ladybug" and "Be who you are". These two books are easy to understand and help children with their educational, mental, social, and communication development.
